HAMPI UTSAVA

📍 Hampi, Karnataka

January 11-12, 2020

The UNESCO World Heritage Site of Hampi was the capital of the erstwhile southern kingdom of Vijayanagara that ruled over the region from early 14th century till mid-16th century. Now a city in ruins, it presents a surreal landscape of stunning architecture.

This two-day cultural extravaganza is a melting pot of music, dance, puppet shows, and carnivals. It is believed that the festivities date back to the era of the Vijayanagara Empire. The special Light and Sound Show is yet another draw of the festival.

FESTIVALS IN LADAKH

📍 Ladakh

Throughout 2020

Yet another way to celebrate Ladakh's ample bounties is through its colorful festivals. Some of these are Losar, celebrated in the eleventh month of the Tibetan calendar, Hemis Festival, a commemoration of the birth of Guru Padmasambhava (the legendary Indian Buddhist mystic who introduced Tantric Buddhism to Tibet) with masked dances (Cham) by the monks, Matho Nagrang with the oracles as its highlights and Dosmoche, another important festival celebrated in Leh, Likir and Diskit monasteries. An enriching and cultural experiences await visitors in one of India's newest union territories.

DURGA PUJA

📍 Rural Bengal (near Kolkata)

October 22-26, 2020

The biggest festivals of the Bengalis, Durga Puja pays homage to Ma (Mother) Durga, the Hindu Goddess, and her victory in the battle against the demon, Mahishasura. Although Kolkata is synonymous with the five-day festival, celebrating it in rural Bengal can be an engaging experience. Observe the customs and traditions up close, savour bhog (offerings to the Gods), partake in rituals like Anjali (rituals and prayers), Sandhya Aarti (evening prayers), performance by Dhaakis (drummers), Dhunuchi Naach (a form of dance during the pujas), and sindoor khela (farewell ritual).

DIWALI

📍 With a local family in North India

November 14, 2020 (tentative)

The festival of lights is emblematic of the victory of light over darkness. Homes are decorated with diyas (clay lamps), prayers are offered to Gods and Goddesses, gifts are exchanged, artworks are designed on the floor with powdered colours (Rangoli), and Diwali is celebrated with fireworks, and abundant pomp and gusto.

One of the best ways to enjoy the festival is with an Indian family. Visit their home, observe the various customs, traditions, and puja rituals, chant mantras, sample delectable sweets and share a meal with them.

DEV DEEPAWALI

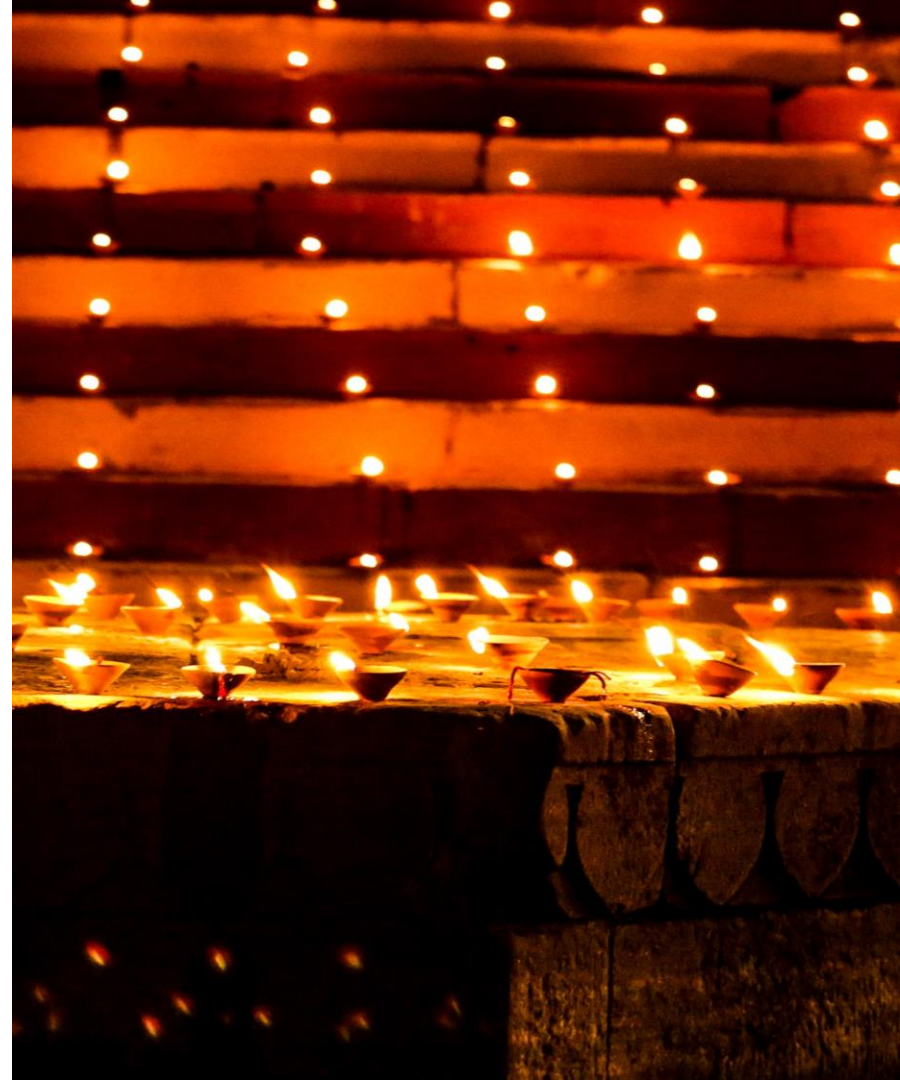

📍 Varanasi

November 29, 2020 (tentative)

On the auspicious day of Dev Deepawali, the ghats (river bank) of the holy city are illuminated with tens of thousands of diyas (earthen lamps) and bedecked with flower rangolis (traditional designs) which are carefully arranged around the diyas. Aarti on this day is an absolute wonder to behold where more than 50 priests and priestesses perform the rituals with their stupendous lamps as sacrosanct chants and hymns, and perfumed smoke from incense sticks lend an ethereal air to the already divine ambiance.
