Abercrombie & Kent

Geoffrey Kent and his parents, Valerie and Colonel John Kent, founded Abercrombie & Kent in 1962. The company's beginnings were modest; Geoffrey Kent remembers their first safaris were conducted with little more than "a Bedford truck and my mother's sterling silver ice bucket." In 1967, Geoffrey Kent, now Managing Director following his parents' retirement, decided to expand A&K's signature style of travel. In 1969, he began opening additional companies in Africa; in 1971 he met Jorie Ford Butler of Oak Brook, Illinois and opened a sales office in the United States.

Today, A&K is the largest luxury tour operator worldwide, with over 55 offices in more than 30 countries, staffed by over 2,500 dedicated people. Our reputation allows A&K travellers private and sometimes exclusive access to amazing experiences around the world. With expertise in not only luxury travel but culture, wildlife and history, Abercrombie & Kent reveals each destination with an authenticity beyond the reach of any other travel company.

Our local staff have longstanding relationships with suppliers including restaurants, hotels, boats, transportation providers and venues. These partners know our exacting standards and have been fully vetted by our staff to make sure they comply with all local regulations regarding health and hygiene.

We're adhering to best practices for cleanliness and disinfection.

We follow the guidelines established by the leading health experts (including the World Health Organization) to minimize any opportunity for coronavirus exposure during your journey. We'll have hand sanitizer readily available, ensure enhanced cleaning in hotels and restaurants and sanitize vehicles at every arrival and departure (with a focus on high-frequency touchpoints such as door handles).

We're committed to facilitating physical distancing.

On your A&K Tailor Made journey, your transfers are private, and our entire staff plans and executes your itinerary to maintain adequate physical distances as much as possible. Moving forward, your guides will forego shaking hands when saying hello, along with no-contact check-in/check-outs in many hotels.

Wearing personal protective equipment on your journey.

On some A&K journeys, you may be requested to wear personal protective equipment (PPE), such as face masks and gloves, in accordance with local health regulations. We encourage you to bring your own PPE, and you are free to wear it even where local requirements do not make it mandatory. Your local A&K team will also have a supply of PPE on hand where required.

All guides and staff follow rigorous health and safety procedures.

In addition to being experts in your region's culture, history and wildlife, your guides are fully versed in your destination's health regulations as well as A&K's practices and protocols. Everyone involved in running your journey — including drivers, baggage handlers and others behind the scenes — observes a strict, round-the-clock health and safety regimen, including regular staff health and temperature monitoring. A&K staff wear masks at all times and additional personal protective equipment as required.

A&K in East Africa

Abercrombie & Kent is proud to say that it is the only DMC in East Africa that has offices in Kenya, Rwanda, Tanzania and Uganda. This means we provide your guests with the same consistent, high quality service across the region. Each of the offices are fully fledged in their own right and not only do they have their tour consultant teams they each have their own workshops where the A&K fleet of vehicles are maintained.

Our guides are among the best in the industry and are one of the keys to our success. They not only speak a variety of languages including French, Spanish, Italian, German and Japanese but they are also natural storytellers. They ensure the guests' journey is magical, drawing on their experiences to weave compelling and interesting stories about the wildlife, plants, people and history. It is so much more than just the facts – which are easily available to anyone online – it's the local knowledge that ensures clients leave East Africa with wonderful, long-lasting memories.

Abercrombie & Kent has always been at the forefront of innovation in travel which has allowed us to take guests behind the scenes and provide utterly unique Insider Access moments for them. East Africa is the birthplace of Abercrombie & Kent and so the same is just as true here. This, combined with our Abercrombie & Kent Philanthropy projects, allows us to show guests a totally unique side to safari, the likes of which they have never before seen.

Best time to travel in East Africa

Kenya

Kenya is the perfect year-round destination with each month offering its own unique set of experiences. January to March are the hot dry months when the water levels across the country are at their lowest. This ensures spectacular wildlife sightings as the grass is cropped short by the antelope and every species is fighting over the limited water sources. The rains arrive in April and May and the landscape is transformed. The grass shoots up, turning the grassy plains a lush green and the landscape is dominated by wildflowers, butterflies, intense thunderstorms and incredible rainbows - a photographer's paradise. The rains cease in June and the air is crisp and clear. In July the migration moves up into the Masai Mara to take advantage of this wonderful grazing and during August and September the plains are heaving with herbivores. The grass turns yellow in September and by October water sources become limited again. In November the short rains arrive and the country once again turns a lush green which will sustain the wildlife until the next long rains. December is warm as the rains peter off.

Tanzania

Tanzania has a huge variety of beautiful landscapes and there is something to discover in every season. January to mid-March is the hot dry season and the migration is in the southern Serengeti taking advantage of the short nutrient rich grass to give birth to their calves. In mid-March the rains arrive, and the country is turned a brilliant green and the wildflowers all bloom. This is also when the visitor numbers are lowest creating a very private experience. During April and May the rains come down in earnest and many of the smaller properties close however this is also the time where you will see the least people in the National Parks. In June the rain ceases and the country is refreshingly green. The migration moves up through the western corridor in search of uncropped pastures and in July and August they are up in the northern Serengeti and the Masai Mara. In September and October the landscape dries out again and the days get hotter and water sources dwindle. In November, the short rains arrive providing the wildlife with some relief preparing it for the hot and dry months of December to March.

Uganda & Rwanda

Both these countries have a very similar climate throughout the year and there are no big fluctuations making both countries idyllic for year-round travel. There is an increase in rain from January to May which leaves the forests thick and lush and their primate inhabitants gorged on the fruit from the trees. In June the rains lessen and from July to September the countries are relatively dry with only a scattered thundershower here and there across the mountain ranges. In October and November, the number of showers increase and once December arrives the storms occur a few times a week.

Safari in East Africa or Southern Africa?

For many guests a safari is a once in a life time experience and choosing which part of Africa to go to can be a challenge. Here is some useful information to assist in making this tricky decision.

East Africa

Wildlife

The wildlife in East Africa, specifically in Kenya and Tanzania, is found in higher concentrations than elsewhere on the continent; the great wildebeest migration alone contains 2 million individuals. Rwanda and Uganda are also home to the two largest primate species and both these countries can be easily combined with a wildlife safari in Kenya or Tanzania.

Landscapes

There are a myriad of spectacular landscapes in East Africa - from the soaring mountains of Kilimanjaro and Kenya, the primate rich jungles in Rwanda and Uganda, the many rolling grassland savannahs and the long, wide beaches of the coast.

Activities & Culture

East Africa has numerous activities available from walking safaris to soaring over the plains in a hot air balloon. There are also a wide variety of cultures for guests to experience from the more famous Masai to the lesser known pygmy Batwa.

Food & Wine

Not a renowned destination for food but the properties offer delicious meals. There is also the option for guests to have a local cooking class in a village to experience how the locals live.

Beaches

Both Kenya and Tanzania have glorious beaches with powder-white sandy beaches just a short flight away from the national parks and reserves.

Southern Africa

Wildlife

The wildlife in Southern Africa is less dense and trackers have to work a little harder to find them. However there are a larger number of close up wildlife interactions that make up for this. From walking with elephants in Botswana to meeting the Cape Penguins in Cape Town.

Landscapes

Southern Africa has a stunning variety of superbly contrasting landscapes. The deserts of Namibia with its rolling sand dunes onto the flat floodplains of the Okavango delta into the towering heights of the Drakensburg mountains.

Activities & Culture

Southern Africa not only offers safari activities but the wonderful cities of Cape Town and Johannesburg offer unusual art experiences, bike trips round the city and a myriad of cultural experiences from museums to walking tours with the locals.

Food & Wine

South Africa in particular is a foodies heaven with a wide range of culinary delights to suit any traveler. There are also a huge number of spectacular vineyards farms along the coast.

Beaches

The best beaches in Southern Africa are found in Mozambique which can be reached from any of the Southern Africa countries.
